TOURIST EXCURSION PARTIES TO THE EAST.

Over the Scenic Line of the World.
If you are going east and want to save money, yet travel with pleasure and comfort, it will pay you to invest our personally conducted tourist excursions. The parties are in charge of a Manager who accompanies the cars through St. Louis, Chicago, and the Atlantic Coast and gives his personal attention to the welfare of each passenger in his charge. The schedules are arranged so you pass through the world-famed scenery on the Denver and Rio Grande Railroad by daylight. Open-top observation cars (something entirely new) are free to all passengers. Let us know where you are going and we will be glad to give you full information about your trip, the lowest rates of fare and send you free of charge some handsome illustrated books of travel.

Dr. Curnow, an inmate of the Ag-news' asylum recovered his reason by the shock that destroyed that building.

THE OTHER SIDE HUMOROUS SIDE LIGHT OF THE BIG CITY FIRE

There has been so much of horror and calamity and destruction in the news columns for the past week, that the public is well-nigh surfeited, and will be glad, doubtless, to read something on the other side of the dark page of distressing chronicles. Even with all the terrors and heart-breaking scenes and incidents of this awful catastrophe there is much that is laughable.

Carl Bach, whose mother lives in this city, relatives not a few ludicrous things that came to his notice. He says that he hastily reached the street after the shock, and when the first feeling of fear had passed off he could not help laughing outright at a girl whose attire consisted of a nightgown that did not reach much below her knees, with the incongruity of a gorgeous Easter bonnet on her head. He could not restrain his merriment.
Presently the girl began laughing in return and pointing at him. He made a hasty examination and discovered that though he wore a coat, he had no trousers on, and his "nighty" only covered his legs kilt fashion.

An actor who escaped with much less clothing than decency demands, says he felt pretty naked until he saw a man running down street as though pursued, his sole attire consisting of a fancy vest.

Over in Golden Gate Park two actors met:

"Hello, old man!" said one, "where are you stopping?"

"See that big tree over there?" was the retort, pointing. "Well, my apartments are in the third story, first branch to the left. Drop up."

One man saved his piano and he set it up in the park under a tree. He was a musician and singer, and the piano was his all—his every life. In the midst of pain and misery and suffering the man sat down to his beloved instrument and played gay melodies and sang humorous ballads. This man with nothing between him and the poorhouse but his instrument, was a hero. Until almost exhausted he kept up the spirits of thousands in the range of his voice and his playing, by making them forget. He never got such heartfelt applause; never was an audience so stirred by him before He gave them the best that was in him, and it was all light and airy and happy.

There is another little incident which serves to show the temper of the great crowd of hungry and homeless in the park; how little it takes to restore the gaiety of the American people. From the depths of the cough of despond they are raised to the highest pinnacle of delight by the smallest trifles. From the incongruous mass of wreckage, household effects, sick and injured, chaos and despair in Golden Gate Park, as darkness was settling upon the great throne, a phonograph began playing "My Merry Oldsmobile." It brought forth a cheer and a chorus of laughter from a radius of 200 yards.

A strange sight is the great number of parrots in cages, depended from gas light posts and other available standards. People who owned parrots appear to have given the birds their first thought. One man who noticed a great many of the birds in cages, remarked to a friend:

"Well, I guess all the parrots were saved anyway."

It is also stated that one of the birds was heard to remark, the Thursday morning following the great catastrophe, when the poor bird had been almost blinded by smoke and almost baked by the heat of a nearby fire.

"Ain't this hell?"

John Edwards of this city says that his brother Paul, the newspaper man, lost his cap, and yet he could not help laughing when he saw him dragging a trunk up hill. Paul had placed some bed clothing across his chest to make a sort of a cushion for a rope which he attached to the trunk handle and placed around his body in much the same fashion that some wears a breast strap. Paul was perspiring freely.

A returning Stockton man says that last Friday at the ferry a well dressed young woman asked him to hold a satchel while she got her ticket. He did so, and in the crush the young woman got separated from him and did not claim her luggage. He got tired of carrying it, and finally discovered that it contained a cat and a puppy dog.

Jack Clifford and Uhrie Hurrell had an amusing experience. Before getting too close to Oakland they left their amusing experience. Before getting into the service and they reached the water-front by another route. They asked a man with a launch what he would charge to take them across. The man said he would take five for $15 apiece. The two found three more willing to stand the touch, and as they were about to embark a sixth man came up who declared he had to go across and wouldn't take no for an answer, though the launch owner said he could not take more than five. He refused to select the five himself, and told the six they would have to fight it out. About a hundred yards away they saw another man with a launch and they asked him his price. He offered to take the entire crowd for six bits apiece. He got the job.

After spending a day in the burning city the two Stocktonians were pretty well frayed out when they got off the train to take their auto, and two beautiful ladies, mistaking them for refugees, rushed up to them and begged them to accept food or assistance. They didn't have the nerve to take the proffered aid, but Clifford declares he is going back again, tie a bandage around his head and look sick—Stockton Mail.
